17.) Consider your relationship with your husband from your children's perspective. Do they see you both loving each other and painting a clear picture of Biblical love or do they see you tearing each other apart either to the face or behind the back? Would they say your marriage is strong and solid or weak, unstable, and insecure? Would they say that you respect and admire their Dad and that their Dad loves and cherishes you?

18.) What patterns and ways do you currently have in your marriage and life that might affect your children's future and future marriage? Think of you own personal home life growing up. What are some of the good and the bad things that have shaped you into the person that you are? (Pg. 67-69)
